7. [] Talked with Boyd Crawford, Staff Director of the House Foreign Affairs Committee, indicating that I had reviewed Secretary Rusk's testimony before the Committee in which he had referred the members to Mr. McCone and added that this did not give a great deal of guidance as to what the Chairman wished the Director to discuss. I also asked Mr. Crawford to discuss with the Chairman the fact that the Director may find it necessary to decline to discuss certain specific things since any discussion comes very close to most sensitive areas and that the Director would like to have the Chairman's support in dealing with this type of problem. Subsequently, Crawford advised he had discussed this latter point with the Chairman and Dr. Morgan said he would, of course, support the Director in any way in this matter.
